Dear Friends and Awakening Souls,

Around Valentine's Day, many people start to reflect upon the subject of love. For some, the focus is on their romantic love life, while for others, it's about all of their loved ones. But, whoever you might think of when you think of Valentine's Day, underneath it all, love is love, and without the experience of it in some form, we would all perish.

Love is love. Just our expression of it varies depending on our relationship with our loved one. How we express our love for our mother is different than how we might express it for our father. How we love our children is different than how we love our best friend. Our expression of love for a romantic partner is quite different than how we might express our love for a colleague we respect and cherish. A healer loves his or her patient as does a teacher of a student. And, we may love our work or our pet in vastly differing ways. Yet, love is love.

What makes us experience love in relationship to certain people or things and not with respect to others? Is love some mysterious force that strikes us like a lightning bolt when we least expect it? Is it dependent on our circumstances or karma? Or, is love an all-pervasive creative power that is the wellspring of life itself?

In many cultures around the world, love is most often associated with our heart. Of course, I've read somewhere that in a couple of cultures, people say to one another, "I love you with all my liver." That may be so, but, it falls a little flat for most of us. But, our heart - that resonates immediately. When we experience love, we tend to feel it first and most in and around our heart area, don't we? And, when we feel the pain of rejection, humiliation, disappointment, and invalidation, we also feel it in and around our heart. It is in the space of our heart that we feel our greatest vulnerability as well as our purest innocence.

Around the world, too, are numerous associations of the heart and God. What I have reflected upon for decades now as my favorite definition for clairvoyance and clairvoyant development is this line from Jesus' Sermon on the Mount: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." For me, that gives the whole instruction for developing our soul ability to see clearly. My search has been to realize what purifies my heart. Bit-by-bit, over the years, I've discovered many profound answers. Over this weekend in two all-day seminars, I'd like to share with you some of what I have learned over the years in purifying my heart, what the nature of love might be and how we each can learn to experience much more of this limitless force in ourselves and in relationship to one another.

In Saturday's seminar, Realize Your Soul's Worth: Psychic Tools for Loving Yourself, we'll explore the nature of your soul's worth and the major role that it plays in not only your experience of who you are, but also in your capacity to love yourself and your life. You'll learn how to start experiencing much more of your own worth as an immortal soul incarnated here on earth to fulfill your purpose as well as what creative possibilities open up to you as you do so. You'll also learn simple, but powerful psychic tools that will help you to heal the seeming divisions in your heart of competition, judgment, blame, guilt, and other forms of invalidation that obscures your limitless capacity to love and receive love.

Then, in Sunday's seminar, Love Life for the Awakening Soul? Be Psychic and Have a Loving Partnership, we'll probe the mysteries of why so many awakening souls seem to struggle in finding a loving life-partner. You'll learn some of the fundamental differences between you as a long-awakening soul and others who are not necessarily so, especially when it comes to having a committed long-term relationship. What are you looking for as an immortal soul here to fulfill your purpose as opposed to your ego personality desires seeking to cover its pain of isolation and loneliness? Does it have to be a constant battle or can you learn to live the miracle of your soul life with a spiritual partner? You can be psychic, as well as a healer and a teacher, and have a loving relationship. It's not only possible, it's the crux of the matter! You'll also learn many psychic tools in this seminar, too, that you can apply in your everyday life that will help you have the kind of relationship you were born to have.

We welcome you to come join us for an inspiring, illuminating, and transformational weekend at the Hilton Garden Inn Calabasas to Celebrate Your Light, Your Love & Your Psychic Life!

May the light of truth continue to illuminate your every step!

With love and laughter,

Michael
