Dear Friends and Awakening Souls,

To those of you who are new to our ongoing teleclass series, You Might Be More Psychic Than You Think! - Welcome Aboard! To those of you who have been learning and practicing through any of the first three of our themed 7-teleclass sets in this series - Welcome Back! Either way, we're happy that you are considering joining us in this new set of classes on Your Psychic Development, Your Happiness & Your Chakras. After all, we're sure that your happiness is important to you.

Even if your happiness being important to you is a no-brainer, what would make your psychic development or learning about your chakras and how to use them important to you? The simple answer is that what we call your psychic development is your soul development and without developing who you are as the soul that you are, you wouldn't be happy with yourself. Yes, we're all here incarnating on earth so that we could experience life, learn, heal, and develop ourselves as immortal souls. Do you think for a moment that if we cannot fulfill the main purpose for our life here, we could be truly happy?

The great news is, however, that as souls, we are already truly happy. It's just how we are when we are being fully ourselves. Yet, a lot happens when we incarnate into the human mind and body, in time and space, here on this naturally beautiful planet. For one thing, what we are and have in spirit seemingly gets spaced out over linear experience of time and distance. Rather than retaining the experience of the whole of who we are, we seem to become pieces of ourselves spread out on a page like a paragraph. Then, we feel like we have to read the whole book before we find out what our whole story is. Of course, that's what makes our life seem like an adventure as well. We're on a quest to find out who we are and make friends, climb some mountains and maybe slay a few bad dragons along the way.

In a way, it's like being kids and playing the game, "hide-and-go-seek". We have to seek our true happiness so we would discover who we are that's been seemingly hidden from our view. A very long story short: At first, we look to the ends of the world in search of the elixir that would bring us happiness. Is it all the gold in Fort Knox or the tea in China? Is it this gorgeous person or that creative genius? Would living in this country or in that part of the world bring lasting happiness? Over lifetimes of incarnating here in these bodies, we eventually come to the realization that nothing in the world will bring us everlasting happiness. At best, the things of the world brings us fleeting happiness. And, when we try to hold on to what we thought was the source of happiness, the sorrow and suffering that we experience when it's lost seems even worse than never having had it in the first place.

Finally, when we exhaust our possibilities of finding eternal happiness in this world and we turn inward to the only option left to us, we awaken to a whole different reality that we never saw before. That catapults us on our inward path of self-reflection and making fundamentally new choices for ourselves. It begins our deeper phase of our psychic or soul development. And, in the process, we begin to have glimpses of a different kind of peace and happiness. Although, at first, we may not be able to maintain that experience of peace and happiness for long, we also gain more certainty that it is always found within our own being. We then begin to seek out what made it possible for us to experience that joy.

That's when our chakras become more important in our lives. It's not too different than learning more about the make up of our physical body, how it functions, and what to do to better care for it becomes more important to us, when we commit to taking steps to enjoying better health, productivity, and longevity. If we seek to develop more as souls and experience greater fulfillment and happiness, we discover that we need to learn more about the "anatomy and physiology" of our subtle energy body so we can better navigate our human mind and body. And, the chakras constitute the core of not only our energy body, but of our inner experience of life.

So, if you're ready to embark upon the next steps of experiencing more happiness by progressing on your soul development and learning more about what the chakras are, what to do to better maintain their health, and how to work with them in your life, we welcome you to check out this new set of teleclasses! You will learn psychic tools and ways to apply them in your daily life to help you along toward that goal. It's time to transform your life with greater awareness, understanding, and wisdom.
