Dear Friends and Awakening Souls,

Are you joyous right now? If you are, you must be celebrating life! It would be nearly impossible to not celebrate life when we are experiencing joy. If you are not joyous right now, what is restricting you from experiencing that limitless energy, that vast creative power that is part of who you are? Whether you're having a wonderful day or a challenging one, that power is always part of who you are. So if you aren't particularly joyful, it just means you've forgotten yourself and got caught up in what's going on in your life, rather than being true to who you are. If you're aware of who you are, you can respond to whatever challenges you encounter in your life with awareness, wisdom, imagination, and limitless creative power on tap. Wouldn't that be a joyous experience, even if it's a rough ride?

It's the joy factor that helps us have the perseverance to keep on keeping on, even when the chips seem to be down. When you're experiencing joy, you won't need to consider throwing in the towel. The Upanishad states we are Sat-Chit-Ananda: Truth/Being-Consciousness-Bliss. (Joni Mitchell sang, "We are Stardust, We are Golden" — probably her interpretation of being Sat-Chit-Ananda).

Sat: You have little doubt about being, do you? You are.

Chit: You know you are aware. So you don't have any uncertainty about that either.

Ananda: Bliss! Ah! Here is the only question you might have in your triune make-up. This is where pretty much everyone gets lost, at least some time. You might get lost looking for love in all the wrong places. Or looking for what might give you your joy. You seem to be happier when you are with certain people and not with others. You may feel happier when everything goes the way you expected or hoped for and not as delighted when they don't. So it may appear that your happiness is predicated on your experience of the world around you in terms of who, what, where, when, how, and why. In fact, you might think, "I'm so happy because I'm with you." Or, "I'm happy because my job situation all worked out." Or even, "I'm overjoyed that I finally figured out why my smart phone was acting dumb!" It may even seem that some of us are easy to please, whereas others of us are sticklers for happiness and not so easy to please.

What makes us have at least some certainty that we are and that we are aware is that even if we completely assume that we are nothing but a body, that gives us a sense of confirmation that we exist and that we must be aware because we know we are here and we have all manners of experiences. This happens because the body is part of this world and the world naturally makes space for a body to be here. There is a sense of reality of being a body. Yet, you are spirit and not of this world. You're a temporary visitor in this world. The world cannot make space for you to be here as the spiritual being that you are. That is part of what makes it so much easier for you to believe that you are a body and not spirit. In fact, you might hold on to being a body more because that seems like it's the only way you can keep existing here.

Of the three aspects of your make-up, the only one which you don't naturally have certainty in is joyousness or bliss. Until you make sufficient space for you, being spirit here in this divided world, you won't be aware of yourself, independent of your identification as a body and intellect. Your experience of joy or bliss comes only from your direct awareness of yourself as spirit, not a body of any kind. Only when you make enough space for yourself as the creative, expressive spirit that you are here in this world defined by time and space will you experience the joy within your own being. What makes you experience that joy momentarily when everything is how you'd like it to be is that when that happens, you usually can let yourself be for a short while. It's like going through intense and difficult training for years and then you win the Olympic Gold Medal and, for a short time, you are ecstatic. All the hardships and learning and practice paid off and gave you what you really wanted. You relax and let yourself be as you truly are and experience great happiness, even bliss. When things aren't going according to what you might expect or hope for, however, you might keep yourself from being yourself as you are. You could be tense, stressed-out—anything but joyous. That's what makes joy seemingly so unavailable or fleeting.

To experience the joy of life here in this world, make space for yourself as the limitless, eternal spirit you are. That means you have to live the miracle of your soul or psychic life. Trust and enjoy having miracles regularly. You'll discover that whenever you create enough space in the world for having a miracle, you'll experience your nature of joyousness or bliss. Experiencing that aspect of your true self requires space to express your creative power. Without expressing yourself creatively, you don't experience true happiness. Of your true self of being, awareness, and joyousness, you can only experience the joyous part by sharing yourself creatively in the world.

Begin sharing yourself by celebrating your freedom to creatively express who you are. To do that, however, you need to reclaim your freedom to imagine anything and everything. All creative expressions of any kind begin with your imagination—your ability to make an image in your mind. Next you need to make use of your clairvoyance to see and discern the image from the ultimate never-changing truth. Then you can express yourself using appropriate images you create without confusing the images from who you are. You'll celebrate with joy the creating of miracles in your life.

To help you get started or progress further on the path of living the miracle of your joyous soul life, we offer you this special remote weekend of four 2-hour teleclasses and a post-class bonus Zoom Q&A, Talk-Story & Social. Normally, we would have been in Burlington, Vermont for an on-site seminar weekend, but we've made it safer and healthier for everyone by continuing to teach remotely until the danger of exposure to COVID becomes much less. We welcome you to join us remotely from the comfort of wherever you already are at the time:

* Saturday, Teleclass 1: You'll learn to open the door to miracles with your imagination and clairvoyance. We'll teach you psychic tools to help you get past any limits you've imagined before and set yourself free to create anew.

✧ Saturday, Teleclass 2: You'll learn about the relationship between your clairvoyance, inner creative power, and having miracles. We'll help you hone your innate clairvoyant ability to see what you'd like to manifest in your life more clearly and discern that from the lies that have previously limited you in doing so.

What better way to get unstuck from wherever you find yourself by creating a miracle? It'll sure beat knocking your head against the brick wall trying to figure it all out. You'll discover that truth does always set you free—and miracles come from seeing the truth.

✧ Sunday, Teleclass 4: Even though each of these teleclasses can be taken as stand-alone classes, each also builds on the others before them. As you learn to do that more, you'll experience the truth that you are indeed the light of the world. The beingness, awareness, and joy that you are transforms the world for the better.

You can register for any or all of the teleclasses and anyone who takes part in at least one teleclass during this weekend event is welcome to join us for our fun and profound bonus post-class Q&A, Talk-Story and Social via Zoom on Sunday following the last teleclass.
